Young Investigator Awards at the European Stroke Conference 2007

Apart from the presentation of the J.J. Wepfer Award for eminent stroke research, the programme committee of the ESC awarded prizes to top-ranked young investigators. Of all the abstracts submitted by researchers under 35 years of age, those with the best scores in the anonymous rating process of the Scientific Committee of the ESC were selected. In order to compensate for the dominance of 3 countries with the highest submission rates, of which each had in consequence several top-scoring abstracts, only the 2 highest ranked per country were accepted. Gian Luigi Lenzi was hence able to present certificates and small financial prizes to 11 young scientists from 8 countries. Short take-home messages were presented by the winners.
