Further Section

Cerebrovasc Dis 1994;4:1

Editorial

J.	Julien	Bogousslavsky ^a
M.	Michael	Hennerici ^b

^a Lausanne, ^b Mannheim

Cerebrovascular Diseases is now starting its fourth year since its founding. We are pleased to see the growing interest it stimulates, which manifests itself both in the increasing number of papers submitted and in the increasing number of subscriptions.

It is essential, both for themselves and for the Journal, that members of the Editorial Board rotate from time to time. M J.G. Harrison, London (UK), and D.G. Sherman, San Antonio, Tex. (USA), will be leaving the Editorial Board and A.J. Fox, London, Ont. (Canada), and C. Helga-son, Chicago, Ill. (USA), the Advisory Board. The Editors express their sincere gratitude to these experts, who have supported this initial period of the Journal, and welcome the following new members of the Advisory Board: G.L. Lenzi, Rome (Italy), D. Russell, Oslo (Norway) and S. Al Deeb, Riyadh (Saudi Arabia).

The editors are also particularly pleased to announce that Dr. S.G. Waxman, New Haven, Conn. (USA) will join the Editorial Board, which will enable the Journal to publish more experimental research papers closely related to clinical subjects.

Finally, the editors wish to take this opportunity to thank all ad hoc reviewers who have helped assessing papers submitted in 1993 and whose dedicated and time-consuming work has contributed to the Journal's development from childhood to adolescence.