Further Section

Cerebrovasc Dis 1993;3:65

Editorial

M.		Hennerici ^a
J.		Bogousslavsky ^b

^a Mannheim, ^b Lausanne

During the Second European Stroke Conference, which was held in Lausanne from June 25 to 27, 1992, the best presentations of all platform sessions and each of the three poster sessions were awarded. The chairmen of these sessions and elected members of the Scientific Committee of the European Stroke Conference carefully selected four scientific groups to whom the awards sponsored by Janssen Pharmaceuticals (Neuss) and Bayer Pharmaceuticals (Leverkusen) were presented. Although the Program Committee had already rejected more than 40% of the abstracts submitted to this Conference, this was still a very difficult task since 39 oral presentations and 221 poster presentations were accepted. These authors were asked by the Editors of Cerebrovascular Diseases to summarize their presentations. Manuscripts by Drs. Gass, Amarenco, Pantano, Wardlaw and coworkers are published in this issue of the Journal. Dr. Amarenco was awarded for his poster entitled: Very small cerebellar infarcts: Distribution and mechanisms; since important results are reported in his paper on mechanisms of cerebellar infarction which he co-authored with Dr. Louis R. Caplan, no special summary is included in this series.