The primary purpose of Neuroepidemiology is to publish scientifically sound research studies which address clinically relevant problems related to the etiology, prognosis, treatment, and prevention of neurologic disorders. Judging the scientific merit of submitted manuscripts is the responsibility of the Editorial Board and a panel of ad hoc reviewers. While the members of the Editorial Board are acknowledged in each issue of the journal, the ad hoc reviewers carry out their indispensable work anonymously. This listing of their names serves to recognize their essential contribution to the success of Neuroepidemiology.
