Editorial Note

G.M.		Berlyne
S.		Giovannetti

Brooklyn, N. Y. Pisa

“In this year of 1993, we are introducing two new exciting features:

A section ‘Seminars in Renal Physiology’ edited by Prof. F.Lang of Tübingen who will bring before the readers of Nephron some of the latest concepts and developments in renal physiology.

A section ‘History of Modern Nephrology’. This will not be a rehash of what Bright really describes, or digging up old stuff about Galen or Malpighi, but will concentrate on the modern period, from the turn of the 20th century onwards. The Section Editor will be Prof. Eli Friedman and we are sure he will oversee a fascinating section. In addition, he will choose appropriate vignettes for the end pages of articles in Nephron to add a touch of poignancy to the lives of our readers.

We expect to run at least one ‘Seminar in Renal Physiology’ and one ‘History of Modern Nephrology’ with each volume. We hope you will enjoy them and derive intellectual stimulation from them.”