Editorial

We are very pleased to announce that this and the following issues of Cells Tissues Organs will contain an increased number of pages. This appeared necessary in order to cope with the considerably increased inflow of excellent manuscripts we have recently experienced. You are certainly aware of the fact that Cells Tissues Organs has a policy of publishing all accepted papers online first, immediately after typesetting and proofreading. This works very well so that your papers become available online in final layout and in citable format (with DOI numbers) within a very reasonable time. However, the subsequent attribution of volume and page numbers has been delayed recently due to the increasing backlog of such online-first papers. These can now be assigned to individual printed issues more quickly. We hope that you will welcome this improved service.

*H.-W. Denker
A.W. English*