Pract. oto-rhino-laryng. 1963;25:123

Accidental Strangulation

P.G.

Gerlings

Utrecht

Author's address: Prof. Dr. P. G. Gerlings, E.N.T. Clinic, University Hospital, Utrecht (Netherlands)

Accidental strangulation is a rare cause of laryngeal trauma. Case history. The mechanism of strangulation is described, in which nervous, cardiovascular and respiratory factors are of importance. Experiences with jiu-jitsu give a good insight into this problem.

Pract. oto-rhino-laryng. 25: 123 (1963)

Transtympanic Ventilation of the Middle Ear

By P. H. SCHMIDT, Leyden

This paper will be published in detail in this journal.

Pract. oto-rhino-laryng. 25: 123 (1963)

Benign or Malignant

By W. H. STRUBEN, Rotterdam

In discussing the medical history of a patient it is demonstrated that insufficiently clearly chosen words and expressions in the description of a biopsy might lead to a wrong diagnosis and decision in therapy.

Author's address : Prof. Dr. W. H. Struben

Ziekenhuis Dijkzigt

Dr. Molewaterplein 40

Rotterdam (Netherlands).