Book Review

G. Böhme
Das hörgeschädigte Kind
Early recognition, diagnosis and treatment of hearing disorders are still the main goals of all efforts for the benefit of the child whose hearing is impaired. The present publication was primarily written as a manual for parents and teachers of deaf children, as well as for all those who are involved in the problems of rehabilitation of the deaf child.

Geers Keller und Lowe Plath Rehabilitation und Prevention
Rapid development of electronics has considerably improved the technical design and the efficiency of hearing aids. This monograph is written by experts in hearing-aid problems. It provides both the ORL physician and the hearing-aid technician with detailed information about audiometric methods, adaptation of hearing aids, re-education and rehabilitation of the deaf as well as special problems concerning medical care of hearing impairment.
