A New Journal

Due to a restrictive acceptance policy in Audiology and Neurotology, the publisher has launched the online-only journal Audiology and Neurotology Extra, in which papers can be published that are worth being made available to the public, but for reasons of very limited space cannot be accepted into Audiology and Neurotology. Authors cannot submit their manuscripts to Audiology and Neurotology Extra directly; the editors will forward those papers that are deemed of high quality for peer review, but the acceptance rate will be much higher than in Audiology and Neurotology.

What will be attractive about Audiology and Neurotology Extra is that review and production times will be kept as short as possible and, because it will be openly accessible online, it will be much more readily available to the scientific community and public. All papers will also be catalogued in the citation index.

With this subjournal, we now can look forward to a paradigm shift in publication policy and are happy that more papers can potentially be accepted to, and published under the heading of, Audiology and Neurotology. We hope that many clinicians and researchers will take advantage of this opportunity for rapid communication of their latest findings.

Jeffrey P. Harris, Editor-in-Chief