Who Is Who in the Journal?

International Archives of Allergy and Immunology is an international journal with a long tradition. Since 1950, our journal stands for high-quality, innovative research in allergy and immunology. We provide a forum for basic and clinical research in modern molecular and cellular allergology and immunology and publish original work from the fields of allergy, immunopathology, immunogenetics, immunopharmacology, immunoendocrinology, tumor immunology, mucosal immunity, transplantation and immunology of infectious and connective tissue diseases. Moreover, we feature short communications, reviews, minireviews, commentaries and opinions in these fields.

To guarantee a fair and competent review process, a team of internationally renowned and highly qualified Associate Editors, together with referees who are experts in the above-mentioned fields, support us in reviewing the submitted articles. In the upcoming issues, we are pleased to introduce each member of the editorial team with a short portrait under the section 'Who Is Who in the Journal?'.

We are very much looking forward to receiving your best work for publication in our journal.
