Editor-in-Chief Barbara Bohle

Barbara Bohle, Vienna.

Barbara Bohle, PhD, is the Head of the Department of Pathophysiology and Allergy Research at the Medical University of Vienna, Austria.

She has studied biotechnology at the University for Natural Resources and Applied Life Sciences, Vienna, Austria, and finished her PhD in 2000. She achieved the 'venia docendi' in Immunology in 2002. Thereafter, Barbara Bohle became a principal investigator and Head of the Allergy Research Unit at the Department of Pathophysiology and Allergy Research. In 2007, she started the Christian Doppler Laboratory for Immunomodulation, and in 2010, she became Professor for cellular allergology.

The research work of Barbara Bohle focuses on the role of T cells in allergic disorders, particularly in respiratory disorders and associated food allergy, as well as on the development of novel concepts for allergen-specific treatment. Her achievement has been awarded with the Austrian Novartis Prize 2005 and the international awards of the Pharmacia Allergy Research Foundation (PhARF) 2006 and the World Allergy Organization (WAO) 2007. She is the author of more than 100 peer-reviewed original articles, invited reviews and book contributions.

Barbara Bohle is a member of the Collegium Internationale Allergologicum (CIA) and the European Academy of Allergy and Clinical Immunology (EAACI). She has served as a secretary and chairperson of the EAACI Immunology Section and as a treasurer of the Austrian Society of Allergology and Immunology. She also serves on the scientific board of the Paul Ehrlich Institute, Langen, Germany. Barbara Bohle was involved in the organization of the annual EAACI congress in Vienna in 2006 and several EAACI winter schools. Currently, she is active in organizing the European Congress of Immunology (ECI) in Vienna in 2015.