In conclusion, this study suggests that the navigator-guided transmodiolar approach for cochlear implantation is feasible via the middle ear cavities. Interindividual variability in temporal bone anatomy suggests that neuronavigation is essential for a reproducible procedure.

Acknowledgments

This work was supported by Neurelec (Vallauris, France) and Collin Ltd. (Bagneux, France). The authors thank M. Denis Genelot and Prof. Pierre Trouilloud from the Department of Anatomy at Dijon School of Medicine, France for their technical assistance.

References

Erratum