Editors' Note

In this issue of Heart Drug we are introducing a new section focusing on research methodology under the section editorship of Dr. Keld Kjeldsen, Copenhagen, Denmark. We would like to welcome our new, dedicated section editor to the team.

We will start off our new Research Methodology section with a series of nine articles amended from A Practical Guide to Medical Research, by Kjeldsen, Bech and Andersen Schmidt. The first three articles of the series are:

- Mentorship in Medical Research
- Use of Computers and Software in Medical Research
- Writing an Original Medical Research Paper

In future, submissions dealing with all aspects of the planning, conceptualization, organization, practical realisation and presentation of research are very welcome, and should be directed to our new section editor.

We hope the readership will enjoy this very educational launch, as the aim is to contribute to and strengthen the methods of research.
