Presenting current knowledge regarding the relationship between exercise and diabetes, this publication discusses in detail the physiologic, molecular and genetic mechanisms involved in this interaction. Further, the book presents valuable information on the role of exercise in the treatment and management of diabetes through the life course, including gestational diabetes, diabetes in children, and in the elderly. Notably, the role of diet in modulating the relationship between exercise and diabetes is explored, and for the first time, the importance of sedentary behavior, rather than exercise, is highlighted. The current public health guidelines for type 2 diabetes are presented, as well as practical recommendations for the management of type 1 diabetes. Finally, in each chapter areas of further investigations are emphasized.

The book provides a valuable and up-to-date overview and is highly recommended to researchers, students, clinicians, including physicians, dieticians, biokineticists, physiotherapists, nurses and diabetes educators.
The Book Series

Medicine and Sport Science

Series Editors:
Caine, D.J. (Grand Forks, N.Dak.); Hills, A.P. (Brisbane, Qld.); Noakes, T. (Cape Town); Borms, J.; Hebbelinck, M. (Honorary Editors; Brussels)

ISSN 0254–5020, e-ISSN 1662–2812

This series was inaugurated at a time when the sports sciences were separated from medicine. From the first volume on, the editors have united these two areas in order to bridge the gap between medicine and sport science and to give the scientific community at large, and biomedical researchers in particular, the full benefit of current advances being made in the multifaceted domains of sports medicine. Contributions from biomechanics, biochemistry, morphology, engineering, and from different areas of clinical medicine are incorporated into this innovative series.
